POSTGRADUATE RESEARCH COMMUNITY CONFERENCE

Reimagining Research Methodologies for the 21st Century

Each year, the School of Education holds the Postgraduate Research Community Conference. It is a one day conference held on the Saturday following the Carolyn D Baker Memorial lecture. Carolyn D Baker was an Associate Professor in the School of Education and an outstanding supervisor of RHD students. Carolyn initiated the Postgraduate Research Community Conference.

The 2014 conference title is Reimagining Research Methodologies for the 21st Century. The keynote address will be given by Professor Tracey Bunda (University of Southern Queensland). Tracey's keynote title is Maintaining the Self in the Collective: Re-inscribing the PhD.

Staff and research higher degree students from all institutions are welcome to attend the conference. There is no registration fee for University of Queensland staff and students, and registration is online via the link below.
